M&A TEASER

Newsletter

Harmon

M&A Teaser is a weekly newsletter focused on providing information on M&A activity in the Iberian Peninsula.

Every week, we research and summarize news, trends, transactions, job moves and anything else of interest that happens in the industry. We have used the data we have researched to compile this report.

M&A Teaser was born with the idea of creating a community in the Iberian market, in which everyone is informed, updated and aware of all the movements both in Spain and Portugal.

We are independent and aim to position ourselves as one of the best information providers in the Iberian M&A industry.

01. The Spanish M&A market – 9M 2021

Following a tough 2020, in which Spain's economy was one of the hardest hit by the pandemic across Europe, Spain started its economic recovery in 2021 with a booming M&A market and a promising outlook.

Increasing competition in other European countries, Brexit and its consequences, continuing Covid-19 restrictions and slow vaccination progress in other countries have been pushing funds and financial/legal advisors to look for new frontier markets. High liquidity across the world and the significant amount of dry powder buyout firms seek to employ have generated lots of interest from international private equity firms in the Iberian market, both from European and US players. This has led to both 9M 2021 deal volumes and values in Spain clearly surpassing 9M 2019 and 9M 2020 levels.

From a sector point of view, the highest deal values were achieved in energy, mining & utilities, whilst the high interest in the region's renewables sector has been a key driver of activity. More than 50 deals took place in the Industrials & chemicals sector, making it the most targeted one.

What's more, political stability, low cost of talent and tax breaks are other factors which have been attracting international investors' interest to the Iberian Peninsula. The region has become an interesting market for many players to open their own local offices or hire dedicated teams. It is therefore not surprising that, during the first nine months of the year, investors and advisors have been beefing up their teams and more than ten international firms have arrived to Spain and Portugal. Local players have also been hiring aggressively to prepare for what is proving to become a record-breaking year for the entire M&A market.

02. Funds – Executive Summary*

Between January and October 2021, M&A Teaser and Harmon have been tracking the most important moves within investment funds in Iberia (VC, PE, Debt, Infra & Real Estate). According to our data, there are close to 30 new players in the Iberian Peninsula competing in different verticals, including 4 local firms focused on Private Equity.

Almost 15 international funds have either opened an office in the Iberian Peninsula or hired a senior adviser to help them with deal sourcing & origination in the region. The large majority of these players came to play within the debt market, like Pricoa Private Capital, who opened an office in February and have already closed a landmark transaction with Atlético Madrid.

Oakley Capital has been one of the international funds who has set its eyes on the Spanish and Portuguese PE industry. Only a month after having hired Valero Domingo as a partner, they closed the acquisition of Primavera BSS and have already completed other VC investments in the region.

International Venture Capital, Real Estate and Infrastructure funds are trying to seize opportunities in the Iberian Peninsula, and a total of 7 funds dedicated to these sectors have decided to open branches in Spain.

03. Financial Advisors – Executive Summary*

Between January and October 2021, M&A Teaser and Harmon have been tracking the most important moves within Corporate Finance/M&A Advisory in the Iberian Peninsula. According to our data, 5 international players have launched new corporate finance teams in Madrid, including well-known firms such as Jefferies and Stifel.

The firms that have hired the most in the region are, in particular, Alvarez & Marsal, Alantra, Evercore, Bestinver and Beka Finance. Two of the most noticed hires included BEKA Finance hiring two former managing directors from BNP Paribas, Arturo García-Tizón and Diego Aguinaga, to re-launch their M&A department.

Given the positive environment for non-banking finance, Mid-Market players are increasingly focusing on advisory for private lending & distressed investment. Norgestion, Arcano, Clearwater, V4, Arthur D. Little and international firms such as Crédit Agricole and A&M have been building teams to capitalize on these trends.

04. Legal Advisors – Executive Summary*

The market for senior talent within legal advisory firms in the Iberian Peninsula has been particularly competitive. There have been tectonic shifts all around and many partners have been moving bringing with them entire teams.

According to our analysis, the most active practice in Iberia has been Banking & Finance. From international firms such as Linklaters and A&O to local boutiques including Ontier & Fieldfisher Jausas, more than 10 law firms have hired partners dedicated to this practice to participate in the wave of banking consolidation and NPL divestment in the region.

Following the trend of NPLs after the end of moratoriums, local boutiques have been focusing on building their restructuring & insolvency practices. Six local firms have either promoted a practice leader internally or hired externally for their teams.

Overall, we have noticed increasing activity of several local boutiques that have been investing heavily in building their teams. The most active firms YTD have been Ontier, Ecija and Fieldfisher Jausas who hired close to 20 partners across the Iberian Peninsula.

05. Outlook

The strong recovery of the Spanish and Portuguese economies coupled with Covid-19 losing more and more protagonism, gives reason for optimism that we will see a few great months with a lot of activity for everyone in the market.

Given the political prioritization of the national integrated energy and climate plan and projects involving digitalization, the renewables and optical fiber sector will continue growing and attract lots of (international) investor interest.

There is growing concern among analysts about a global slowdown in economic growth, caused by rising energy costs and distortions in some supply chains, inflation as well as uncertainty about China's real estate sector. To fight inflation, central banks could begin to tighten monetary policy, withdrawing stimulus and even raising interest rates. A more uncertain economic growth and interest rate outlook will make valuations and financing more difficult.

In light of the current cost of hiring & retention, technology will play a bigger role in the industry and Iberia could start catching up with more developed markets such as the UK and US.

In the event that the cycle turns, we could see an increase in uncertainty in the PE sector, due to the high valuations being paid. That would also have an impact on the advisor market, especially on those firms that have grown aggressively.
